

Environmental Citizenship & Climate Change:
A WORKSHOP FOR COMMUNICATING SCIENCE

Wednesday, March 28
Cook Campus Center
Multipurpose Room

PROJECT CIVILITY at RUTGERS

At 1:30PM – 4:30PM

A colloquium for the Rutgers community and the public.

Extreme Weather and Climate Change:
How Can We Address Uncertainty?
co-sponsored by the Climate & Environmental Change Initiative and the Initiative on Climate & Society

RSVP at: www.goo.gl/Kds7d

Interactive workshop co-sponsored by:

Rutgers Climate & Environmental Change Initiative,
Rutgers Initiative on Climate & Society,
Cook Campus Dean, Dean of Douglass Residential
College, Cook Dean of Students, Project Civility,
Douglass Project, Office of Undergraduate Education,
Rutgers Meteorology Club, Environmental Science and Engineering Club, Oceanography Club, Rutgers
Undergraduate Geography Society, and Environmental Science Graduate Student Association

At 6:45 PM

An interactive workshop for Rutgers students

How can you, the responsible global environmental citizen, communicate to others why climate change matters? Learn how during an interactive workshop featuring:

- Gabriel Vecchi, a Research Oceanographer at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Geophysical Fluid Dynamics Laboratory,
- Joe Witte, a broadcast meteorologist at George Mason University's Center for Climate Change Communications, and
- Cara Pike from Climate Access.

Pizza will enhance the participatory experience. Attendees will get a valuable hands-on experience in communicating science at this interactive, fun, and informative event. Please RSVP to: joanba@echo.rutgers.edu by Tuesday, March 27 to ensure your space and inclusion in the pizza count.

Scan Me!